

What a Girl Wants, WHAT A GIRL NEEDS

You give her gifts and tell her all the time how much you love her, then why isn't this enough?

Gentlemen, the holidays are finally over and no matter how much you spent on your wife there's a chance she wasn't completely satisfied with your gift. Although you might be surprised to hear it, there is a logical reason for her feeling this way. For many women, the one thing they really want they have a hard time articulating.

You might not really hear her if she tells you she wants more romance, more engagement and more of your time. All of this adds up to one thing—she is simply trying to tell you that she wants to feel desired. Not just desired in the way that she's your wife, the mother of your children or your lifetime partner, but desired in the sense that she is the most impressive, irresistible woman you've ever laid eyes on. It might sound easy to do; however it's not if you're always on your phone or computer which limits your time to just talk to her.

Below are five ways you can show the woman you love how deep your love is for her. Keep in mind that desire can't be faked and no matter what you buy for her, it will never be enough if she doesn't feel adored and irreplaceable to you.

COUNT THE WAYS: Take charge and arrange a date that will make her feel adored and exclusive. How does her love affect you? Count the ways and share it with her.

NO ELECTRONICS ZONE: Get off your cellphone, computer, and gadgets so you can communicate with your words and eyes.

PUBLIC DISPLAY OF AFFECTION: Show her affection in public and don't be afraid to express how much you love her. Being vulnerable with her is important for building closeness and love.

EYES ON THE PRIZE: Women want to know that you choose them completely, not because you're married to them. If you can't break the habit of looking at other women then wear blinders when you go out. One of the most hurtful things you can do to your wife is passionately look at other women in her presence.

EXPRESS YOUR DESIRE: Let her know that intimacy and sex are important to you because you desire her, not because you need to be attended to. Women who don't feel desired don't feel like having sex.

A woman wants to feel prioritized, desired, and valued over everyone else. This isn't something you can buy, wrap up in a box and give to her. Be mindful that you might need to take stock of your relationship and how you make your wife feel. If you value your relationship, then commit to making necessary changes and be the man she wants to love and to cherish. ♡

MARY JO RAPINI

Mary Jo Rapini is the co-author of Re-Coupling: a Couple's 4 Step Guide to Greater Intimacy and Better Sex. A Houston-based psychotherapist specializing in sex and relationships in addition to being a speaker and TV personality. maryjorapini.com